

The Australian Mental Health Outcomes and Classification Network (AMHOCN) are hosting the second Australasian Mental Health Outcomes Conference (AMHOC) at the Crown Promenade Hotel in Melbourne from 24-26 November, 2008. The inaugural conference was held in Wellington, New Zealand October 2007. For presentations and information from that conference go to: <http://www.tepou.co.nz/page/251-Welcome>

This conference will provide opportunities to share results and experiences with routine outcome measurement within mental health services in Australia and New Zealand. Informative, educational and interactive sessions are being planned to ensure contemporary practice issues are presented and continued developments reinforced.

The Australasian Mental Health Outcomes Conference has been convened to provide an opportunity to share the results of the introduction of routine outcome measurement within mental health services. Services are encouraged to present and showcase local examples of OM in action including: clinical applications, consumer and carer initiatives, development of outcomes information systems and the use of information to support quality improvement and service development activities. It is anticipated the conference will offer inspiration for the continued development of routine outcome measurement in mental health services along with further strategies for sustainable applications into the future.
